DETAILED ACTION

1. The response filed 9/5/06 has been entered. Claims 1-48 are pending in the application.
2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

4. Claims 1-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. Independent claims 1 and 25 appear to rely on the alleged novel feature of a derivatized inorganic nanoparticle having an average particle size of less than 200nm and a stability constant greater than 10^{10} with iron (III). However, the Applicant does not provide sufficient guidance in the instant disclosure at the time of the invention for one having ordinary skill in the art to select from an infinite number of possible inorganic materials, and an infinite number of functional groups, in order to obtain a derivatized inorganic nanoparticle having the claimed stability constant without performing undue experimentation. It is further noted that the Applicant provides no testing conditions with regards to the claimed stability constant and considering the testing conditions may also affect the resulting stability constant in addition to the functionality on the surface of the nanoparticle, a claimed stability constant with no further claimed testing conditions makes it even more difficult for one skilled in the art to make the derivatized nanoparticles, particularly since the examples provide no further guidance. Therefore, the original disclosure does not describe the subject matter in a way that one skilled in the art could make the invention without performing undue experimentation to determine what inorganic material and an attached metal-ion sequestrant or functional group would produce a derivatized nanoparticle with some stability constant greater than 10^{10} with iron (III) at some unclaimed testing conditions given the level of unpredictability in the art.

Response to Arguments

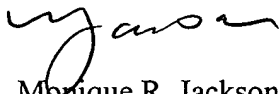

5. Applicant's arguments filed 9/5/06 with respect to the double patenting rejections have been fully considered. The double patenting rejections recited in the prior office action have been withdrawn in view of the timely filing terminal disclaimers. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-48 in terms of WO'113 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
